Bike Lane Mileage by Year

Annual Bike Counts

Metrics

- Annual bike counts
- Miles of new bikeways
- Miles of upgraded bikeways
- Track neighborhood bikeways separately (wayfinding, traffic calming, safe crossings)
- Miles of AAA facilities (need to define-should be obvious)
- Timeline showing bike projects: planning, design, construction, completed
- Living Ends completed/Bike Connections/Curb Cuts
- Measure of connectivity: include transit
- Bike racks installed
- Bicycle education classes/attendees
- Community bike shop resources (free repairs, supplies, maintenance classes)
- Intersections improved (need to think about what is an "improvement")
- Signals: Bike Detection, Automated walk signals/LPI, New signals for bike crossings
- Daylighting intersections
- CLT social media
- [Clear air, congestion reduction, mode share, better community collaboration]
- Should these metrics be different, or weighed differently, in urban-suburban-rural contexts?

Charlotte is now one of a few cities in the country with a People-Powered Bike Lane Sweeper, aka PBLS. We know what you're thinking - and yes, we also have cities bike lane-specific sweeper, Sweepy McSweepface. The PBLS fills a gap in the massive job of maintaining our bike lanes and allows the cycling community to join the effort.
To celebrate this exciting new technology, we want to reward the person who racks up the most miles while using the bike lane sweeper between now and May 12th the winner will be announced at a benefit gathering hosted by Trips For Kids Charlotte. Event details will be announced at a later date.

Click the button to reserve the PBLS or to learn more about the project and Ramez Tadros, the man behind it. You can also check out this NEWS STORY that recently aired.
